“Cogito, ergo sum.”

About Me

I joined Red Hat on May 2017 as OpenShift consultant. I was part of a great team in Santander technology group, Produban. As consultant I performed all required duties trying to understand our customer needs and implement best solution possible. Produban has several Openshift clusters running around the globe, running on top of Openstack and VMWare.

When I've decided to leave my job at Red Hat was for sure one of the hardest decisions I've took in my entire life because I did not only quit a job, I also left people behind, some of them I consider friends.

Why Red Hat?

Red Hat is an unique company, a great place to work plenty of talented people from different cultures.

Also, is the type of company which gives me the opportunity to participate in a challenging environment, where I can learn from others and collaborate in an innovative manner, as it happens in opensource communities. Besides that, Openshift is one of the best opensource products.

Why Me?

The position of Openshift Support Engineer aligns with my skills and previous experience. I can be up and running in matter of few weeks since I already know most of the tools.

Sincerely,

Jorge Rúa Riveiro
